Billings Clinic Internal Medicine Residency

- Community-based program in an urban setting located in a very rural state. We provide tertiary care to a large geographic area
- Residents receive robust training in caring for significant pathology like what would be seen in a university or urban center
- Our patients are a diverse group which includes those traveling from distant rural areas, those with housing/food insecurity, a large Native American population, and suburbanite professionals
- Small size which allows for active support from faculty as well as close-knit ties within the residents. Our residents are a strong group, and we look forward to meeting those who are interested in joining us!
